

There are no translations available.

Dear dharma friends

It is with heartfelt sorrow that I have been following the tragic developments ensuing from the massive earthquake that struck Nepal and the neighbouring countries this morning.

Over nine hundred people are dead, many more injured or still missing, and thousands have lost their homes and livelihoods.

My wishes and prayer are with all the victims of the disaster: the deceased, the injured and the bereaved alike.

I would request all of my students to join me in making wishes and praying for them, to make lamp offerings dedicated to their benefit, and especially to recite the six-syllable mantra of the Buddha of compassion, Avalokiteshvara, as much as possible.

With prayers,

Karmapa Trinley Thaye Dorje

(Quelle: Facebook und karmapa.org)

The 17th Karmapa Trinley Thaye Dorje

New Delhi, April 25, 2015

Dear dharma friends

It is with heartfelt sorrow that I have been following the tragic developments ensuing from the massive earthquake that struck Nepal and the neighbouring countries this morning.

Over nine hundred people are dead, many more injured or still missing, and thousands have lost their homes and livelihoods.

My wishes and prayers are with all the victims of the disaster: the deceased, the injured and the bereaved alike.

I would request all of my students to join me in making wishes and praying for them, to make lamp offerings dedicated to their benefit, and especially to recite the six-syllable mantra of the Buddha of compassion, Avalokiteshvara, as much as possible.

With prayers,

Karmapa Trinley Thaye Dorje